COMBINATION OF STAR ARTISTS
ever gathered together on one stage in the world, and now acted for a month to ENCHANTED AUDIENCES magnificent theatre to the doors.

MR. STUART ROBSON

THE FAMOUS MAJILTONS as the "Farandole Sprites."

"ROI CAROTTE,"

THE HERALD SAYS;—

"surpassing, as 'Roi Carotte' does, all previous attempts made here in the same line, in the multiplicity of its mechanism, the number of its performers and the strangeness and intricacles of its stage business, we must admit it is one of the most wonderful pleces ever presented in any theatre—full of interest and humor, while the scenery, like a kaleidoscope, ever shifting, and keeps the spectator in a maze of assonishment and admiration. The Fompelian tableau cannot, indeed, be too highly praised. The old broken columns and heaps of debris quickly fade away under the influence of the magic lamp and the city, as it was before its fall, its houses gay with emblems, its streets alive with its varied mob of pleasure seekers, rises up in the full light or midday before the audience. The monkey tableau' is also one of the oldest out stranges and most our ageously ladicrous spectacles of reality, even gan days, which make so dazzling a show as that of King Carrot. It is impossible, indeed, show as that of King Carrot. It is impossible, indeed, show as that of King Carrot. It is impossible, indeed, the spectacle."

TWO PERFORMANCES PERFORMANCES PERFORMANCES By the youthful, gifted and charming CHARLOTTE THOMPSON, is most enthusiastically received by the public. CALLED BEFORE THE CURTAIN AFTER EACH ACT.

"ONE WIFE,"

"ONE WIFE,"

Although REVISED, is assailed, with what character of spirit the following from the Herald is evidence:

"Altes Cheriotte Thoranson seems to have been so elated with the unsavory notoricty she acquired a few weeks ago by the production of One Wife that she last night produced fix again. This time, however—so the management condescent to inform the public—the pleec has been revised." But the revision has only made it very much more offensive than it was before. Its fundamental idea—a rot of half plea for the right of a wife to plot the marder of a husband when he is wifully and persistently unfaithful—revoiting and unnatural as it must be to every healthy mind, has, of course, remained unmodified. The change consists in substituting a series of moral plaitudes and appeals to the gallery in place of the sparking dialogue of the original, which was only interactive at the first production of the pleecourse it had been translated with stupidity, and was, in addition, played with neither spirit nor intelligence. As an example of what One Wife is now, the following speech, which we do not remember to have heard in the first version, may be cited. Mrs. Vanzandt says:—European civilization has demoralized us; we have substituted the gliding of French vice for the solid gold of Auerican virtue. The 'us' in this passage can only refer to the company and the management of this theater; and even then the Judgment ought to be modified so far as to include a statement that the gliding is free to the company and the management of this theater; and even then the Judgment ought to be modified so far as to include a statement that the gliding is read to most interior Dutch leaf. It is absurd to waste one was the production of this theater; and even then the Judgment ought to be modified so far as to include a statement that the gliding is read to most interior Dutch leaf. It is absurd to waste one was the production of the pleece.

The Star has the following — THIS DAY.

There was quite a large audience at the Olympic Theatre last evening to witners the revised 'One Wife'— a drama, it will be remembered, that created a sensation on its first production, rather on account of its broadness of dialogue and immoral expositions than for its exciting scenes. Is was generally condemned by the press as a drama fitted to the state of French society, but far too wicked to be placed before an American audience. Americans evidently approve of wicked things, for they went to see 'One Wife' every night. Miss Thompson, who essayed the leading character, was compelled to leave the city to fulful another engagement, in the very height of the success of the piece. Having concluded that engagement she returned to this city and appeared last night in the play as reconstructed. The plot has not been changed, but the sensetes and indecent tenthine dialogue extirpated and the language of the characters generally toned down. Last night the play was well received."
